Every Cloth Suit Must Go. Reductions From 1/3 to 1/2.

T'S time now to make a clean sweep of all the spring-weight cloth suits in the house, and we're going to make it a "clean sweep," for we've made reductions that would be extraordinarily interesting in themselves, even if they didn't apply to suits possessing such merit of style as these of ours. Practically every sort of suit you can fancy is in the lot. Styles include the very latest blouse effects-well varied. Some suits have full-tucked back, with silk front and revers, and are finished with braid and deep-shirred cuff-others are in yoke effect with large tucks from yoke to belt. Another style has strapped seams and braid trimmings. The fabrics are broadcloth, etamine, cheviot, Panama cloths, herringbone serges, granite cloths, etc., in plain colors, such as tans, gray, black, blue, green and a

AN INSPECTION.

What Some of Them Said About the Institution and Its Merits.

A group of representative citizens, mostly nembers of the executive committee of the citizens' committee of one hundred, appointed to raise the amount necessary to secure the $25,000 donation of Messrs. Woodward & Lothrop to the building and furnishing fund of the Young Men's Christian Association, inspected the new building yesterday evening. It is only partially complete, the contract for the work ending on August 1, but enough has been done to give general idea of what the building will be In the party were Justice Thomas H. Anderson, chairman of the committee of one hundred, and who announced that it was Col. William C. Greene of New York, who had contributed the first $1,000 he had se cured for the fund; A. Lisner, William H. Saunders, C. F. Nesbit, E. S. LaFetra, E. R. Rochester, James Sharp, Daniel Fraser, Scott C. Bone, W. S. Ward, Allen D. Albert, John F. Wilkins and Joseph L. Atkins. Here is what some of the party say about the building and its merits: Mr. A. Lisner.

"I am sure every one who has contributed to that building will feel proud of it when the structure is completed. They would feel so now were they to inspect it. It is a grand building, and should the time come when it must be enlarged the merchants and business men of the city will gladly join in raising the necessary money. There is no question that the building and furnishing fund will be secured at this time. The good the Y. M. C. A. accomplishes and the work it does is so far reaching and so general that all will recognize its worth and be willing to contribute largely toward its support. I was surprised at the building. Everything is so well planned and de-signed so minutely for the best uses. One need go no further than the reception hall to catch the spirit with which the new home for the Y. M. C. A. has been planned. Experience has shown those back of the work what is desired, and they will soon have it, all to the advancement of the young men of our city, and therefore most vitally to the entire city."

John F. Wilkins.

"The magnificence of the new Y. M. C. A. building was astonishing to me when I was shown through it. That such a building could be erected and so thoroughly equipped for $300,000 seems rather remarkable. While every part of the building is designed to serve a good purpose, the devotion of so much space to the educational work is surely wise. Even if there were no other consideration than the good which will come out of this department, no one will come out of this department, no one would regret the money he may contribute toward it. Any organization does good which helps young men to help themselves and fits them for life's work."

C. F. Nesbit.

"What appealed to me yesterday was the size of the building and its remarkably low cost. It contains the very best elements of the modern association building. The Y. M. C. A. movement originated in England, yet it has developed in America and here at the capital of the nation it is quite fitting that we should have the very best type of building to be found anywhere in the world. I have visited association build ings in nearly all of the cities east of the Rocky mountains with the exception of those in the south, which are not so large as elsewhere, and I think that there is no question that we will have the one best adapted to the needs of young men and one that will do the most good. That was made possible by the shape of the lot, containing 30,000 square feet of ground. It was purchased, happily, about five years ago at a very low cost. Even with the large plant which the Y. M. C. A. will have, it will not provide for more than one-tenth of the young men of Washington. A membership young men of Washington. A membership of 4,000 to 5,000 is counted upon and yet there are at least 40,000 young men in Washington!"

Daniel Fraser.

"It is as good as a hotel, and much better, for it is a home. Business men can do no better than thus make it possible for the young men who flock to the city to find locations under the most pleasant and healthful surroundings. The building is being put up with a vim, which betokens the energy which will be put into the man-agement of the work when the structure is completed. Outside of a home there could hardly be a better place for a young man than to frequent the rooms of the Y. M.

Scott C. Bone.

"An inspection of the building makes one think of the great good which must come out of the work. To the stranger, equally with the resident of the city, the doors of its home are open, and its facilities for religious, moral, educational and physical improvement are hospitably extended. Itsinfluence, always for good, will reach more in the new building than has been possible in the old, and will be a controlling factor in many an honorable and useful career. It is easily understood why business men, not necessarily church members, are among the most liberal contributors to Y. M. C. A. funds. If any one has doubts about its usefulness they will be vanished when he Inspects the building now being erected in Washington."

Unveil thy bosom, faithful tomb, take these new treasures to thy trust,
And give these sacred relics room to slumber in the silent dust.
Here sleep thou till our longer race and heavier tolls shall close;
Then shall we seek thy resting place and share thy long repose.

Rest.
